"If I were in the publishing bust ness," said the gray-headed man, "I'd get out a school reader and put that ancient and honorable literature, while as for their parents, who sometimes look through a school book seeking in vain for a familiar echo of their own childhood days, why, they would get a whiff of the inspiration of youth that would lop at least 15 years off their age. I'd put in that poem about "Make Me a Child Again Just for Tonight," and that other one where the little girl wants to know if 'God isn't on the ocean just the same as on the land?' Then there are "The Gambler's Wife, Lowellyn and His Dog.' 'We Are Seven.' and "Lazy Ned." I'd print all these old gems and sandwich them in between the speeches of Patrick Henry and Daniel Webster, and that old classic about the content boy who had no kick against life as he found it, even though he hadn't even a turnip to eat. Maybe my book, when I had finished compiling it. wouldn't find favor with a modern school board, but I'll warrant you it would strike a sympathetic chord in the breast of many a reader, old and

LINK WITH THE DEAD PAST.

Has Handkerchief Stained with Blood of Charles I.

An interesting Derbyshire "link with the past" is recalled by Mr. J. H. Sharpley of Hatfield college, Doncaster, in a letter to the Sheffleld Tele-graph. He says: "In 1872, when a boy staying at Hulland ward. Derbyshire, I called on an old woman, Eliza-beth Durose, then 97, widow of a farmer, who told me that her grandmother, when a girl, had known a man—a distant relative-who had witnessed the execution of Charles I. The old woman then took out of a corner cup board an old prayer book, bound in black leather, which was, I fancy, of the time of Queen Anne, for I remember it had a frontispiece picturing a parson in gown and bands, and wearing a long wig, saying prayers in a 'three-decker.' Opening it at the form of service for January 30, she showed me a piece of coarse linen, of the color of a dead leaf, which she said was portion of a handkerchief which had been dipped in the king's blood, and was given to her grandmother by the above eye-witness. When it first pass-ed into her possession it was nearly entire, but her children had played aged to preserve."-Derby (England)

Wolf in Italian Town. It is not often that European eyes witness the spectacle of a wolf trot-ting lesurely through the streets in broad daylight, and with little apparent concern. Such an incident hapnened recently in the Italian town of The wolf went sniffling first in the direction of one house and then of another as he went along. Passing by the hospital, an attendant of sporting instincts saw the game, and, rushing for a gun, gave chase. Before long he got a chance for a shot, which hit the wolf, and, following this un with another, the beast was slain. presence in the town is accounted for by the theory that the heast had been hunting over night away from his haunts, and after eating to satiety and sleeping through the night, was way back to his lair.

Aldrich and Whitman. T. B. Aldrich knew Walt Whitman and liked him personally, although he would never admit that Whitman was a poet except in here and there a single phrase. Many a time has the present writer endeavored to convert Mr. Aldrich from this state of heathen blindness as to Whitman's genius, but the debates used to end illogically with Mr. Aldrich's delightful story of a certain 33 which Whitman once borrowed from him-magnificently, but, alas, irrevocably—in Pfaff's restaurant in Broadway.—Atlantic Monthly,

YEARNING FOR OLD FRIENDS.

DODGED A PEACE OFFERING.

We are in a peculiar predicamen said the man about town. "By 'we' I meets once a month for dinner, just ident, who founded the club, is sort of a crank. He's a good fellow, in a way, but wants to run thisgs to suit himself and sometimes we have trouble with him. Not long ago we had a that nearly disrupted the club. We all thought he was to blame and told him so; but after a while the out-burst died down and then we thought we'd like to show him there was no permanent hard feeling, so we to give him a loving cup, as he is a valuable man to all of us.

"By an accident he heard of the se cret and at once wrote us that no man or men on earth could give him a loving cup—that he wouldn't accept one, least of all from us, after the scrap we just had. We all went to him or wrote to him urging him to let the presentation take place, but he stead-lly refused. Then we told him he'd have to accept it: that it was all ready and it would break up the club if he didn't take it. He said he was willing to resign, but have a loving cup he would not: that if we attempted to present it to him he not only would leave the club, but cut every one of us off his list of acquaintances. He won out. We can't afford to lose him, re are trying to cancel the order for the cup."

COUNTED TWINS AS UNIT.

Grandmother Found it impossible to Disassociate Them.

The Harmon twins looked so much alike as bables that their parents could scarcely tell them apart, As they became older it became evident that to grandmother Harmon at least the twins were a unit.

"You were asking me how much the twins weigh," said grandmother Harmon to a neighbor. "When I went out mon to a neighbor. "When I went out that afternoon I put one of them on the scales at the grocery, and found they weigh just 26 pounds."

"Do they always weigh exactly the same?" inquired the neighbor, and grandmother Harmon looked quite im-

Truth is the courage to be honest and in general the attitude of a man toward facts will depend upon the training he has had and the company he has kept. Dr. Johnson, who was so careful to tell the truth and to state it accurately that all the eminent men of his time who were his intimates-of his "school"-were noted for their veracity and attention to the truth, gave this counsel:

"Accustom your children to a strict attention to truth, even in the most minute particulars. If a thing happens at one window, and they, when is in the heart of Portland's Italian relating it, say that it happened at quarter and is now a tenement swarm another, do not let it name, but instantly check them; you do not know ttaly. BACK TO FRANKLIN THEORY.

Scientists May Be Foresd to langed stare Rentainin Franklin om ploying a phraseology now superseded, pronounced "a delusion" by the physiclats of the ninteenth century, but the scientists of the twentieth century, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, may be forced to rehabilitate it as the only means of issue from the labyrinth in which all physical study is now involved. Stripped of technical verbiage and out briefly, the Franklin theory is that electricity and matter in combination form a neutral substance, which is the atom of matter as we know it. The most interesting part of the problem. for ourselves, says Sir Oliver, is the explanation of matter in terms of elec-tricity, the view that electricity, as Franklin seems to have supposed, the fundamental "substance." What we men of to-day have been accustomed to regard as an indivisible atom of matter is thus built up out of electricity. All atoms—atoms of all sorts of "substances"—are built up of the same thing. In our day, to put it more clearly, the theoretical and proximate achievement of what philosophers from Franklin's day to ours have always sought-a unification of matter is offering itself to physical inquiry.

SERVANT PROBLEM IN CUBA.

Cook is in Sole Charge of the Domes

The Cuban matron has little to say in the management of her own house hold, as the family literally board with their cook, who has sole control of the cusine. When a cook is engaged she is paid so much per month —$10, $15 or $20, as the case may be for her work. She at once inquired now much is allowed for the market ing, which she is to do each morning. On being told, she figures out how much she can save from the amount cents per day, she is likely to accept the position. She rarely sleeps at the house, and usually has a family of her own who are fed from the larder of her employer. Early breakfast is light—fruit, rolls and coffee—and at toon there is a meet known as late breakfast, which resembles the Ameri can luncheon. When this is finished the cook spends a few hours at her home and returns at five o'clock in time to prepare dinner. A half-grown girl is amployed to wait on the table, answer the door bell, etc. In some families male cooks are employed. If the meals do not suit the master the house he adds more money to the marketing allowance.—Mrs. C. R. Miller, in Leslie's Weekly.

Hard to Answer. One day Robert Herrick, the novel-ist, was impressing upon his class in English literature, in the University of Chicago, the importance of reading what had been written with a purpose and had character and power. He con trasted forcefully such literature with the light, vapid, frivolous sort that seemed to appeal to such a large per centage of readers. He then asked each student to tell him frankly which kind he was reading. After nearly all had confessed to something light, he came to a tall westerner, who showed a tendency to evade the question. "It can't be possible, I hope," said Herrick, "that you are not reading any-

His High Estimation of Steam. Carlyle once startled the English speaking people into recognition of the value of their great dramatist by suddenly asking the British public which it would rather lose, Shake-speare of India? I thought of that the other day, muses the editor of the Ruder, when I was reading an article on steam navigation. What would the world rather lose than steam? What? Why, almost everything; our literature, our art, our religious. Nothing we have is so valuable as steam it is the greatest civiliser the world has ever possessed.

MEN ARE TRUER FRIENDS THAN WOMEN.

By Juliet V. Strauss

The saddest thing in life is to have outgrown a love; the next is to have outgrown a friendship. We may bury our friends out of sight, and long years of grief will put cure the wound, but it is a loving pain, marred

JULIET V. STRAUSS. by no unkindness, no cruel recollection, but the old friendship that it gone perer to return! The queer sound of the once familiar and beloved voice when it falls upon the stillness of our hearts is "like sweet bells langled out

The man or woman who would be your friend if you madn't a penny to your fortune is the one you want to charish, whose abuse you should take cheerfully, and whom you should not snub for those who love you when you wear the cap and bells, who care little enough for you when you no longer amuse them.

18 MODERN LIFE TOO STRENUOUS.

By Andrew Wilson How much heavier mental and physical strain can the average man, compelled to battle for livelihood in large centers, endure without collapsing? Where is the limit of human endurance under the nerve shattering and increasing stress of modern life? "I be a medico-sociological savant informs us, "that we are approaching a condition of life under which men and women cannot live long and keep their reason. I further believe that this condition will bring about the evolution of a markedly different type of man and woman that can live and thrive under the strain. In some future time of stress, say, during some epidemic, panic, or the like, there is likely to be a wholesale breakdown in population. The mass of people sur vive however. Man is an adaptable animal, and the quick, nervous, undersized specimen of man now being tred is able to stand up under the life. Meantime, how ever, the giant mill is being fed with humanity from the outside, and every day sees the larger grist ground out, every day sees the machine speeding faster.

Dr. F. Peterson, a well known specialist in nervous complaints, states that it is as impossible for a man to through one day of life and not encounter more or tess friction as it is for a builet to travel through the air and escape the same. The intensity or speed of existence marks the amount of friction. The amount of ent loss to the man depends on the ability of his constitution to recuperate, and on whether or not the friction be resumed before the collapsed tissues of brain and body are completely rebuilt.

TO LESSEN CRIMINALITY.

By Cesare Lombroso. From material submitted to me came the evidence that crimes in Australia are diminishing both in number and in gravity. How can this marked decrease of crime be explained, with all the statistics elsewhere being in contradiction? For even in Germany, one of the most advanced of European nations, one sees erime and dereliction steadily increasing, sees the number of renegade crimingle nearly doubled. The zignal diminution in Australia may be explained on the ground of its social reforms, for even the proletarian there stands better economically than an official in Europe. Another reason lies in the scattering of the people in isolated outlying farms and the rule of pastoral life, which is little predisposed to crime, and, finally, in the continual, uninterrupted warfare that is against the corruption of the young.

Further than this, many judges and attorneys, who now feel themselves pledged to inflict some punishment for the crime, will find another way and transform the social revenge into a healing process which will be far more efficacious than punishment.

ARGUING WITH WOMEN.

By Wallace Rice.

Women have strange notions about the arguments of men. Few of the sterner ser have any good opinion of one of their fellows who has not convictions he is prepared to stand by with the greatest carnestness. Most of us have them ourselves, and we expect them from other men.

Women, not comprehending just the part that argument plays in masculine mental economy, have a corresponding form of discourse which may best be characterized as wrangling. They talk and they differ, but it is seldem done with a view to obtaining light from an opponent.

Therefore men find what they consider argument with womankind not in the least profitable. It frequently settles down into an exasperating desire to have the last word without the least reference to anything that has cone before it, or remains a sort of vocal strength test When this contingency arises the wise man departs, and, if the matter is worth it, goes to his office and says what he has to say on paper.

Self-Elimination.

William Jennings Bryan is talking a good deal nowadays, and it is to be observed that his talks are usually replies to Democrats who dare to suggest some thing concerning the next campaign. If Henry Watterson says he has a candidate. Bill wants the dark horse trotted out right away. If some other Democrat urges the policy of naming a candidate from the South, Bill protests that section must not be considered. If Judson Harmon modestly hints that people want the tariff revised. Bill says, "All right, but that isn't the main thing; we must go after the trusts and railroads."

This constant nagging on the part of Mr. Bryan, this taking issue with every other Democrat in the country on every proposition advanced, thereby setting himself up as the party oracle and the only one, is doing more to make his nomination improbable than could be eccomplished by years of organized effort. Prominent men in the party are etting tired of Mr. Bryan's bombast. He had no sooner stepped foot on American soil after his trip around the world than he placed his party on the defensive by advocating the government wnership of interstate railroads and state ownership of intrastate lines. This adical socialism created such a furore that Mr. Bryan was compelled to modify his statement, and he then declared it would be the natural outcome after government control was proved a failure. But Democrats repudiated his revision, and he has been studiously silent of late on that proposition. Finally be asserted that Roosevelt was a good deal of a Democrat, because he had stolen Democratic principles and adapted them to his administration, whereat John Temple Graves suggested that, as a true American citizen, Mr. Bryan should go before the Democratic convention and nominate Mr. Roose-Suddenly Mr. Bryan discovered that Mr. Roosevelt, after all, was not

The Post asserts that "there is but one political party in the South;" that results are settled at primaries and that hundreds of thousands of voters disqualify themselves by refusing to pay poll taxes. "Here in Texas," it remarks, "we have 000,000 voters, of whom 600,000 are undoubtedly Democrats, but last year scarcely 150,000 votes were cast for the Democratic candidate for Governor, and less than 300,000 voted in the Democratic primaries, while our records now that only about 500,000 are qualified to vote under the laws of Texas."

As more than a third of the votes in ill the Southern States in 1904, and a fourth of those cast in Texas, were Republican, the statement that there is only one party in the South is inaccurate. It is repeated with such parrot-like persistence that many believe it. Whether the voters in the South who remain away from the polls are Democrats or not is a matter unproved. They are more apt to represent, if not opposition, various forms of dissatisfacnot cast must remain unclassified until it takes its place in the returns. Only 18 per cent of the population of Texas are negroes. The Texas Republicans numbered 51,242 in 1904, and there are excellent reasons why the number will be increased in the next national election.-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Not Yet.

The Dingley tariff has been in effect for ten years. In that time our "infant" industries have had all the protection they need, in many cases too much protection for the good of the people.-Chicago Journal.

Is that so? And how about the Journal's subscription and advertising patronage? Both have been the benefciaries of the era of prosperity that exists in this country on account of the Dingley tariff. Does the Journal think it has got to a point where it can get along without prosperity? Has it a notion that American industries can go on paying the highest wages ever known and employing full quotas of vorkmen in competition with the cheap abor of Europe? If it does, it is inboring under a delusion. The removal of the petective principles of the tarin would instantly expose the industries of this country to the inronds of foreign goods made at starvation wages, and no matter how strong and prosperous an institution is, it cannot long withstand such a corrolling influence on its business. Wages would have to be lowered, quality of articles cheapened and money withdrawn from investment in unprofitable concerns. Any one with common sense can figure out the ultimate result of such a condition. With all due respect to the Journal for a most excellent but misguided newspaper, the intelligent people of the country do not propose to do away with the protective tariff and let down the

A Lesson in Philanthropy

A whole-souled resident of Harlem the other evening received the joit of his career as a parent. While reading his evening paper the doorbell rang. and a parcel from a big department store was announced. AN UNDERGROUND GROWN.

Cat. Frank B. Passy, who during had fully experimented with an underground rden in an abandined coal mine near conville, Ind., onys that before another winter's winds blow he will have his parden producing radishes, onlons, tulips, habiscus and numerous other vegetables and flowers. He declares that he has already demonstrated that his underground garden is a success and not merely a dream. This fall he will begin developing his plan on large scale and proposes to have gar en "truck" for his own table and the tables of his neighbors and friends, all to be taken from the mine garden.

The plan of this garden presented itself to Col. Posey two years ago when he, together with Attorkey W. Z. Bennett of Boonville, bought up several hun-dred acres of hilly and broken land near the little town of Yankeetown. It is on this land that the mine is located. He believed that plant life would thrive un der artificial light, and said so. Ther ne proceeded to prove his theory and did t by producing tulips and carnations, which flourished and bloomed in the garden he laid out in the old mine.

In one of the old rooms of this abandoned mine Col. Posey arranged a bed for the plants. The plants needed light, so he arranged a small acctylene gas lamp its rays would fail evenly over the growing rapidly, and in less than half the time usually required for such vegeta-tion to bloom, Col. Poscy's "dream" was realized, and he was giving away flowers to his friends in midwinter.

An acetylene gas plant large enough to supply light for an ordinary dwelling will be installed in the mine and the lights so arranged that they will distrib-ute their rays equally over the ground in which the plants are growing. Mr. Posey says that he will raise radishes, onions, lettuce and other vegetables and various kinds of flowers during the next winter.

LONGEST STEEL BRIDGE.

New Hell Gate Structure to Be Three Miles Long.

Another step in the progress of the Pennsylvania railroad's New York tunne extension was taken recently when plans for the East river bridge of the New York connecting railroad were submitted to the municipal art commission for its approval. This bridge will form part of a steel viaduct more than three miles long connecting the New York, New Ha-ven and Hartford railroad system in the Bronz with the Long Island and the Pennsylvania. It will be the longest and heaviest steel bridge in the world. Eighty thousand tons of steel will be used in ts construction. It will carry four railroad trucks imbedded in stone ballast so as to render the structure noiseless.

Plans for the bridge over the waters of the Hell gate show a steel arch span of 1,000 feet between abutments. These intments are stone towers dividing the I ch bridge proper from the steel viaducts that form approaches to it. The tower will rise to a height of 200 feel and wil contain rooms needed for railroad opera tion. The tracks themselves will be 140

Test for Two-Cout Pare Lav The clash of State and federal court in Missouri over the execution of the new 2-cent railroad fare law enacted by the Legislature of that State resolved itself into an agreement announced by Judge McPherson, that beginning June 10 this and the maximum freight laws would be in effect for ninety days for a practical test, after which he would hear arguments from both sides based on actual figures of the insiness done. Notwithstanding that Attorney General Hadley had got an order from Circuit Jode Reynolds prohibiting the eighteen protest ing trunk lines from resisting the laws Judge McPherson ruled that the Federal Court had and would maintain jurisdic-tion. The three months' trial was satisfactory to Hadley and to the roads.

WHY CROSSES CONTE Of no less showbing interest them the tory of his crimes was the testin which Orchard, the multi-assessin, gave in the final stage of his cross-examination at Boise, Idaho. He wept when he told how he camb to confess. In opening this part of the cross-examination Richardson tried to show that coercion had been attempted by the penitentiary authorities to obtain a confession from Orchard after his arrest for the Steunenberg assassination. Orchard testified that he was placed in a new cell house, in a steel cage, with solid walls and steel-barred doors. He was taken to the penitentlary without his consent and not advised as to his rights. He was permitted to speak only demned murderer. His meals were served in the cell. He was not allowed to exercise nor leave his cell, nor was he permitted to read books or papers. After about ten days Detective Mc-Partland visited the penitentiary and Orchard was taken to the clerk's office to talk with him. He did not know who he was, until he was told that the visitor was a Pinkerton detective. He complained to McPartland about the treatment he was receiving and they had a mutual talk about their past lives, McPartland telling him about his part in the Molly Maguire affair. Later McPartland talked about the Bible, telling how King David was a murderer and had repented and how St. Paul had been transformed from a bad man into a good one. McPartland told him about "Kelly, the Bum," who was implicated in the Molly Maguire outrages and was permitted to leave the country after turning State's evidence. Orchard said McPartland had not been the first to turn him to thoughts of religion: he had been thinking about them liniself. McPartland told Orchard that he believed he had something to do with the Steunneberg murder and that he was aided by officers of the Western Federation of Miners, but made no promise to him if he would confess.

Richardson took Orchard back to his boyhood in Canada and had him tell that he went to a Methodist Sunday school when a boy and to church with his mother and his first wife. He at tended Quaker meetings with his mother and had also gone to Christian Endeavor meetings. He never belonged to the Salvation Army. Returning to the first visit with McPartland be said the detective upon leaving told him to think over his past life. The next time the detective came he told Orchard he could do the State and country a great deal of good and that the State usually acted fair with its witnesses. Orchard said he knew what McPartland was after and had no faith in what he said about the State's treatment of its witnesses. On the third visit Orchard comuenced to tell the detective some of his wrong doings. McPartland then told Orchard he was a tool of the Western Federation. About this time he had made up his mind to tell all, as he did not care to live any longer. In fact he was tempted to kill himself. He did not want to put the crime on anybody else, but had thought of his past life and what a monster he had been. He did not care much what happened to him and yet he was afraid to die, for he believed the grave did not end it all. A Bible was sent to him by a mis sionary society in Chicago, and after reading in it he came to the concluslon that he would be forgiven if he freely repented and made a clean reast of his crimes. Since that time he has never been in doubt. He had told Steve Adams, who by this time had been brought to the penitentiary also and occupied the same cell as Or chard, that he intended to kill bimsel with the crystal of his watch, by cutting an artery. He said he belonged to Colburn Lodge of Masons and knew that Peabody, Bell, Goddard and other whose lives he sought to take were iigh degree Masons, but did not know that Steunenberg was. Even after he confessed he contemplated suicide. His confession he believed to be a duty to God, country, society and himself. He land. Steve Adams was arrested on the strength of Orchard's confession Upon his promise to the penitentiary nuthorities he urged Adams to make confession and said that the truth would come out some time. He told Adams then that if he ever got out he would "cross the pond," meaning that he would go to Europe. He did not say this because any promise of escape had been held out to him. He had ne er received a promise of immunity.

Nothing Too Good For the American People

There is NOTHING TOO GOOD for the American people—that's why we started to make Cascarets Candy Cathartic. The first box mad its appearance in 1896, and the enthusiastic endorsement of the people has been bestowed upon Cascarets ever since.

The sale today is at the rate of OVER A MILLION.

BOXES A MONTH, proving that the American people recognize, that what is BEST FOR THEM is none too good.

Why this enormous patronage?

The answer is simple: Cascarets are pure, clean, sweet, mild, fragrant, harmless but effective little tablets for the treatment and cure of Constipation and all Bowel Troubles. They are put up in neat little enamel boxes, casy to buy, casy to carry (in vest-pocket or purse), easy to take and easy of action, always reliable, always the same, they "work while you sleep" and wake you up feeling fine in the morning. .

They not only regulate the movement and stimulate the muscular was the bowels, but they keep the ENTIRE CANAL CLEAN and antiseptic, for out and destroying all disease germs that breed in the accumulated fifth as promptly and regularly discharged. Therefore, they are a great prevently disease, and may be taken continuously as a precautionary measure.

The new Pure Druga Act, adopted by Congress on June 30, 1906, and law effect January 1, 1907, is a GOOD LAW and means better and FURER drugs for the American People. We endorse it and will live up to it is. SPIRIT and LETTER,—an easy task, as we have always been actuated by the same principles and no changes are required in our formula or pechange.

We adopted OUR OWN PURE DRUG LAW in 1895 when the first-box of Cascarets came on the market and have lived and worked and produced under it ever since.

To-day, after a record of nearly 100,000,000 boxes sold, Cascarets STANDthe greater in PURITY, QUALITY and MEDICINAL MERIT them any other preparation for Bowel trouble in all the world.

This should be a great argument for any one, to try Cascarde AT ONCE, and be healthier and happier for it. Some people have CHROSHC CONSTIPATION with all the horrors derived from it; others have HAB-ITUAL CONSTIPATION from carelessness and neglect, but mostly-EVERYBODY has OCCASIONAL CONSTIPATION, which is not; promptly taken care of is liable to result in its degeneration into the worst forms and cause great suffering and perhaps death.

Cascarets, if taken patiently and regularly, will remedy all of these awail troubles; but if taken promptly at the very first sign of as kreather and will keep all the machinery running in good order.

We advise you to get a little 10c box of Cascarets TO-DAY and energy it in your purse or vest pocket. Take one when you feel anything unusual about your bowels. Your own druggist will sell you the little box, under GUARANTY of satisfaction or money refunded. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 25c,

ELEVEN YEARS OF ECZEMA

Hands Cracked and Bleeding-Nail Came Off of Finger-Cuticura Remedies Brought Prompt Relief. "I had eczema on my bands for about eleven years. The hands cracked open es and bled. One of my fingers was so bad that the nail came off. I had tried so many remedies, and they all had failed to cure me. I had seen three doctors, but got no reitef. Finally I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a bax of Cuticura Olntment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent Pills. Of course I keep Cuticura Soap all the time for my hands, but the one cake of Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment cured them. I recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all suffering with eczema, Mrz. GRAYLING, THURSDAY, JULY

Grand Trunk -- Grand Rapids.

At the eastern approach of Grand Rapida new solid concrete bridge is the new passenger station of the Grand Trunk Railway System. No better site in the city could have been selected. It is centrally located near the corner of Canal and Bridge streets, only a few steps from the heart of the city and to the leading hotels and mercantile catablishments. Four different street car lines pass directly by its door affording its passengers direct trausfer to all other railroad stations, hotels, furniture exhibition buildings and other important places of business. Less than one block distant are three other street car lines a total of seven lines distributing peo ple in fourteen different parts of the

It is seldom that a site so centrally without more or less annoyance on account of many street crossing, noise and smoke; but, in this instance, all these troubles have been overcome by the Grand Trunk System's large investments in one and one-half miles of concrete wall on the east front of the river on the top of which are lo-cated the tracks. This not only gives the city the benefit of a great improve ment but affords passengers on this route a beautiful view of the Grand river rapids and many of the city's busy factories. The entire premises are attactive in appearance and are well in keeping with the many other improvements that are continually being made by merchants and factories in its immediate locality. THE REASON WHY

Gilt edge creamery butter is superio past two years. They have won and to all other butter is because the cream is furnished by practical up-to-date farmers using hand separators. Years of experimenting all over the world has proved that there is no way of removing the impurities from milk or cream except by running the milk through a acpurator.

When anyone tells you that butter nade from the old fashioned gravity raised cream is just as good, don't le them impose on you. If your groces can not supply you, insist on him do ing so or call at the factory. Use gill edge creamery butter for purity and quality.

TENEMENT FALLS; SEVEN DEAD.

Old Building in New York Shaken Down by Subway Trains. Seven persons, six of them members of one Italian family, the Torchinos, were killed in the collapse of a ramshackle ten-ement in the downtown Italian quarter in New York. Three other members of the same family, including the father and mother, are in a hospital, painfully in-jured, but will recover. Cosmo Bellucci, a lodger, was the seventh person killed. There were some exciting scenes immediately following the accident, one of which was the rescue of an old man from a two foot ledge, forty feet from the ground, this portion of the fallen building having adhered to the adjoining structure long enough to permit the firemen to get to the scene, raise a ladder and take the man, Jacob Reigler, safely to the ground. Then it also fell into the ruins. The collapsed building was a four-story affair, built over fifty years ago, and was at Walker and Lafayette streets. It be-longed to the Mose Taylor estate and for some days has been in a dangerous condition because of excavations for a ner building on the adjoining premises. I

A tornade with a path sixty miles long, followed by a cloudburst, swept through to lower by a cloudourst, swept through the beart of the northern Indian territory oil fields at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, leaving death; uin, floods and fire to mark its course. Three men were killed at Sapulpa, Frank Roper being among the victims, the other two bodies having not been identified. Water righted having not been identified. Water rushed down the streets of Sapulpa a foot dee sweeping small buildings from their fou dations and almost drowning several per ple. The general loss in the oil fields will be enormous. It is thought $500,000 would be a very conservative estimate. One hundred and fifty derricks are re-ported down in the Glenn pool, and it is said all the oil derricks in the Osage nation have been swept away. Fifty-four derricks are reported down at Turley, I. T. At Maize, I. T., houses were overturned and brick buildings demol-lated. Many wells are running wild, the oil flooding the land. UNPREPARED FOR WAR.

Conflict with Japan Uncle Sam Might Lose Islands and Alaska.

The war-like attitude of Japan is causing considerable anxiety among officials of the government and officer of the navy who are familiar with the absolute lack of adequate preparation on the part of the United States for bostilities.

It is said that a declaration of war by Japan would be followed by the immediate loss of our Philippine posses sions, Guam, Hawall, Alaska and the menneing of our Pacific coast.

The United States is to-day less pro pared to meet Japan in the Pacific waters than Spainwas on 1808 to meet waters than Spainwas on 1808 to meet Breakfast not being ready, she returned to the bedroom, where her two children, a boy of 10 years and a girl of 7 years, waters and the small ships in the far were asleep. For some reason not easy for th average citizen to discover there i not an American battleship between San Francisco and Mantla. One by one they have been withdrawn from Pacific waters and joined to the Atlantic flee where they rendezvous at Newbort and Jamestown, until there remains in the far east and on the Pacific coast only light armored cruisers and second and third class ships of the cruiser type any and all of which would be no more than good target practice for a squadron of modern battleships

It is privately admitted, according to a Washington correspondent, that the Navy Department hesitates to or der battleships to the Pacific waters at this time. While having every possible right to do so without question it is well known that such a move would be seized upon by the Japanese of indication of hostile intent, and it might easily be made the subject of diplomatic inquiry-a thing which would not for a moment be tolcrated by our Secretary of State and which might itself provoke a quarrel

The lack of proper coaling stations it is admitted by naval experts, would be a serious handlesp if we were plunged into a war with Japan at this time. Even colliers are lacking in sufficient numbers to properly coal the The only coaling stations in the Pacific are at Cavite, 30,000 tons ca. pacity: Gnam. 3.500 tone; Samos, 5.000 tons; Hawali, 30,000 tons; Man Island, 20,000; Puget Sound, 22,900; Bitks, Alaska, 5,000 tons.

CHARITIES CONFERENCE. Thirty-Fourth National Meet Is Held in Minneapolis, The thirty-fourth National Confernce of Charitles and Correction ended its week of daily sessions at Minneapolis. Amos N. Butler, secretary of the Indiana State Board of Charities, presided, and 2,000 delegates attended, representing the principal cities and towns throughout the country. The opening address was that of Senator Beverldge on child labor, and in the course of the week papers on almost very topic touched by organized chartles was read. One of the most interesting sessions was that devoted to the promotion of health in home, school and factory. In this meeting the question of clean milk house-deaning, house-to-house teachers of cooking, visiting nurses and home life for hospital patients were discussed. Dr. Knobf of New York told of the different kinds of medical examination now made in connection with the promotion of health at school, and uggested the possibilities of schools cooperating with churches and other relief societies, Dr. Owen Copp. of Boston, and others spoke of an improved system of public care for the usane. A long program was devoted to the National Children's Home Society, which has branch societies in every State, conducted by men and wom en who give their time without pay to the work of finding suitable home for orbhans. Each State association onducts its work through local interenominational boards.

O. F. Lewis, of New York, estimated that more tramps are killed on Amerian railroads yearly than the combined total passengers and trainmen. He ontended that our present method of treating vagrants are neither sufficienty repressive to the real vagrant nor sufficiently helpful to the accidental wayfarer. Woodyards and lodging houses do not diminish the national rmy of tramps. He believes that prerentive measures must be based upon wo principles. First, that the able bedied vagrant must work for what he receives; and, second, that the punishment for intentional vagrancy must be more severe. The prevailing policy of ausing arrested vagrants to move from one town to another should be abandoned. He advises sentencing professional engrants to hard labor.

REVOLT IN POLTUGAL

ONE HUNDRED ARE KILLED IN RIOTS.

Mules Fight to Dethrone Kins Carlos, but Soldiers Cut Down Mundreds-Civilians Hurl Mrieks and Bolling Water.

Six hundred rloters were shot and erhaps 100 were killed in street confilets between mobs and government roops in three northern towns of Portugal. The dissatisfaction is spreading to the army and reports from Oporto advise the War Department of the mutiny of six battalions of ardillery. Conflicte are numerous all over the nation, and strennous efforts are being made by the authorities to quell the uprising against King Carlos. Fired on by the troops, hunted down like rabbits through the narrow streets and finally pursued by cavalry which rode down men, women and children indiscriminately, many are dead and wounded in the three northern towns of Braga, Villa Real and Vianna Do Castello. The mobs paraded the streets shouting "Down with absolutism." and decrying King Carlos for his attempt to rule the country without Parlia-

Soldiers sent to disperse the rioters vere attacked by stones, bricks and other missiles. They replied with leys which stretched scores of the riot ers in the streets. This did not quell the mob entirely, however. Persons in houses continued to bombard the troops with stones, while hot water was poured on them. Angered beyond all control, the soldiers began firing again, shooting down persons like rabbits as they fied. Cavalry rolle down every person who could be found.

The large cities are practically under martial law and armed bands of peasants and workmen parade the streets intimidating women and children and attacking the police wherever they try to offer any resistance to the progress of the rioters. The troops only are able to awe the dissatisfied, and the indien tions that mutiny has honeycombed the army with sedition and treason are becoming more evident every day.

King Carlos, surrounded by an army of his most faithful followers, has planned for a rapid escape in case the crisis becomes too great, and steam is kept up continually on the royal yacht, which is manned by English callors who are faithful to his cause.

2,000 Pullets in One House. Professor Gowell, of the Maine experiment station, on his farm, kept 2000 nullets in one house, on an area of 400x200 feet, or a little over two acres. Each fowl had four feet space of house room, which would naturally be considered rather limited quarters. and was only made possible by having them in large flocks and a curtain-front house. These pullets laid from 600 to 800 eggs per day during December and January. If 2,000 laying bens can, as has been demonstrated, be successfully kept on about two acres of land, then five acres are capable of supporting a complete plant for 2,000 bens and growing stock to renew the layers, and such a plant, with proper management, should pay from $2,000 to $5,000 per annum net profit. It is only necessary that the man have the ability.

Cutworms As the cutworm seems to work most ly during nights that are cool, ceasing to do much harm after the nights be come warm, many methods for destroy ing them have been suggested. It has long been known that sod land, or land covered with growth that has not been recently disturbed, contains more cut worms than land that has previously been cultivated and kept clean, as the moth deposits her eggs where instinct ents her to provide an abundance of food, the moths working from June until October in accumulations of rubbish or on fields covered with heavy sod, but not in the ground, as the young weems feed on vegetation, going down into the ground at the approach of win ter, where they remain to begin work early in the spring, reaching maturity in a short time. An excellent plan is to plow the ground, leaving the land gh, late in the season, which turns many worms to the surface, where they troyed by the alternate thewing me of the ground, especially if the soil is damp. Among the advantages gained with green crops are the accumulation of ultrogen in the soll, the rendering soluble of unavallable mineral matter, the protection of the soll with covered crope, the addition of large amounts of homus-forming material to the land. and the mechanical changes in the soil The only disadvantage is the loss of the land, upon which a marketable crop can be grown during the year, its value depending upon the kind of erop and the capacity of the soil. Among the other green crops that are seldom used may be mentioned corn, millet, turnips, rape, sorghum, soy beans, etc., but the crimson clover and cow per crops are preferred. It is claimed that turnips, by reason of their deep, pene trating roots, appropriate a large proportion of the mineral elements of the subsoil, which are brought to the surface when they are plowed under, thus following cow peas as an aid, increas ing the amount of available mineral matter, especially phosphates, but the nitrogen from the cow peas is a clear gain to the farmer, being derived from the atmosphere, while the mineral matter is taken from the lower portions of the lands and brought within his reach. Any method, however, that renders the plant foods in the soil more available should be adonted. Green foods perform valuable service in as sisting to increase the supply of humus, which enables the soil to retain mois

Feeding Prickly Pear to Stock. A bulletin by the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industries, contains notes on the forms of prickly pear and gives the results of feeding tests with cows and steers. The method of feeding this plant was that commonly employed upon ranches in Southern Texas, where the experiments were conducted.

In tests with two cows prickly pent was compared with sorghum hay. The complete data, including weather ob-servations, are reported. "A full roughage ration of pear with a constant grain ration appears to yield fully as good results as a full roughage ration of sorghum hay. The records are really little more favorable to the pear ration." The prickly pear ration, includ-ing twelve pounds of rice bran and three pounds of cottonseed meal, cost 13.05 cents per cow daily. This allowed for the labor and gasoline required in singeing the cactus. It is stated that prickly pear has been fed to a dairy herd for two to four months each year for six or eight years with no complaint from customers which could in any way be attributed to pear feeding.

A lot of twenty-seven steers was ken in a four-acre feeding lot and fed chopped prickly pear with cottonseed meal. The largest and most woody plants available were selected, chopped without singeing, and fed in troughs early in the morning and about the middle of the afternoon. The cottonseed meal was sprinkled on the chopped prickly near. The average daily gain in the 105 days of the test was 1.75 pounds per head, 55.03 pounds of prickly pear and 2.5 pounds of cottonseed ment, at a total cost of 3.48 cents, being required per pound of gain. shipped to market the average shrinkage per steer was 88.5 pounds.

Special Fodder Crops. A fodder crop of corn may be grown independently of the regular corn crop. Careful experiments made show that the fodder crop produced with the ears is more valuable than may be supposed, and that a larger proportion of the fodder would be consumed if it could be properly cared for, so as to he kent in a bright condition. If hay to stock they accept and consume a fair quantity of it. Farmers who have been careful with their fodder have found that when it was cut up fine with the feed cutter and fed in connec tion with ground oats, bran or other grain, not only cattle, but horses, have been brought safely through the win ter in good condition, and at less cos than with any other kinds of food. It la a willful waste of labor to carefully shock the fodder and then leave it, for, even if not destroyed by winds and rains in the field, it is so deteriorated n quality as to be unacceptable to nasist the haw as food, but the point to observe, and which is shown by all experienced farmers, is that corn fodder must be bright. Of course, when cut down in the field it must be done at the proper stage of growth, so as to have the stalk as succulent as possible and as soon as the ears are removed

U. P. HUNTERS CALLED.

New Law Will Stop Selling of Wis consin Weives in Michi Hunters in the Upper Peninsula, being tempted by the $25 bounty offered by the State for wolves, imported roung wolves from Wisconsin, where the bounty is but $4, and demanded the Michigan bounty from the county clerks. A number of these hunters caught wolf pups when young and raised them until they were six months old, and then killed the ani-mals, bringing the scalps to the county seat and collecting the $25 bounty. County Clerk Hensel of Menomines county deafted a bill, which was introducted in the House by Representative Michigan Harris, and being adopted by the Legislature, clausing the bounty laws of Michigan, so us to conform with the Wis-Michigan, so as to conform with the Wisconsin law which provides that wolves over six months old shall receive a bounty of $25 and under six months $10. This will stop the practice of bringing the olves over the line from Wiscon in in order to collect the higher Michlgan bounty.

LIGHTNING PLAYS HAVOC.

Horses Shocked at Richland Funera

Run Away. Lightning played havoc at the funeral of Norman C. Jewett, a ploneer farmer of Richland, when it struck a wire fence, knocking down about a dozen teams hitched to it, and causing four of them to run away, while the people who were sitting in the house rushed out of doors in a frenzied panic. It was threatening rain and suddenly there was a livid flash of lightning and a deafening crash of thunder. The holt struck on oak fend post, scattering it all over the lot. The animals hitched to the fence were knocked in all directions, some of them remain ing unconscious for nearly an hour. None of them was killed. There was a gate in the fence, but even the horses hitched to the other side of this seemed to re ceive the shock, as four of thm broke loose and ran away. One of the teams was badly cut by jumping into another buggy.

AN ATTRACTIVE PAITH.

By Henry F. Cope. "The beauty of holiness."-Paalms

Religion ought to be the most ustural, desirable, and attractive thing to man, for it simply stands for the development of the best in us, the coming into the full and rich heritage that is ours as spiritual beings, and the realization of our highest possibilities of character and service. Ho who ignores religion is cutting himself off from the best and most beautiful possibilities in his life.

Some have talked of the necessity of muking religion attractive. It does not have to be made attractive: there is nothing more desirable than the peace, power and prosperity of the real life which it confers. It is the imitation, the false and prejudiced presentation of religion that men endeavor to dress up attractively. In that they never succeed, for cramping the soul and twisting the intellect ever is opposed by the best in us.

From the caricature of religion we turn with louthing. Mummerles and mocketies, fads and forms leave us empty and impatient. The heart of man coes out to things fair, levely. joyous and uplifting,, and they who find no God in the elaborate sermon or the service in the church somehow are thrilled with the feeling of the divine and inspiring in the woods and field

All things good, all things attractive and lovely, uplifting and sublime have but one source. They touch our hearts because they come from the heart of all being; they reach our spirits because they are spiritual. Deep calls unto deep when the divine in man answers to the divine in the world without, in human affections, in noble aspirations and in glorious deeds.

Too long have we believed that only the unpleasant, the gloomy and repellant could be right or religious. There is a type of conscience that determines action by the rule that if a thing is pleasant or beautiful it must be sinful and wrong. To such souls it is a sin to be summy in disposition, to delight in the Father's fair world, with its glowing riches and bounty dropping dally from his hand.

It would be safer to say that sin must be somewhere lurking wherever there is discord-

Miss Betty's Cavalier

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

As he turned the corner the new rector's heart was beating. There was nothing formidable about the great gabled house; yet, as he walked up the drive his agitation increased. There was a glimpse of pink musin on the veranda that was most disquieting.

However, he went on, and a bend in the drive revealed Miss Betty Sheri-dan standing upon a chair training roses. The picture, which would have agitated even a quiet heart, caused the rector to contemplate retreat. Instead, being a brave man, he stood at the foot of the steps and said gently:

"Good morning, Miss Betty." Betty looked down and nodded be witchingly, and stooped to extend her hand over the back of the chair.

"You'll forgive my not getting down?" she asked. "This is a critical moment. Max, please find Mr. Armory

From the vine-covered plazza came forth a big, languid figure, who gave the final touch to the uneasiness of the rector. Since his coming to the parish of St. Luke's, three months be-fore, and since he had first seen Betty Sheridan on the same day, he had felt a secret and most un-Christian repugnance for this big cavaller, who seem ed always within sound of her voice.

"How do, Mr. Armory?" said the big cavalier in fiannels, looking uncomfortably handsome—uncomfortably to the rector, "Come up and be cool. It's a pretty warm morning."

'Very," admitted the rector. "Ah-

"You ought not to be so busy this warm weather," volunteered Betty— and Betty was never so alluring as when she advised people for their own The rector was guilty con scious of an involuntary and passing sweet impression of the probable divineness of her real tenderness if she could be like this when she didn't

"My duties are my pleasures," said the rector. "This, for instance, Miss Sheridan."

The rector sighed.

This big cavalier in flannels, with hands that one instantly knew could send a ball over a net or across a course with unerring stroke, was very like what the rector himself dreamed in his college days of becoming. This cavalier was one of her world-of Betty Sheridan's world. But to the rector had come the struggle that had ended in his taking orders, and some way since his coming to this some what distracted parish there had been no time to lift either his golf sticks or his foils from their long rest. Instead there had been a ceaseless round of visits-which reminded him:

She was gone in a moment and the room was stuffy and sunsy and uncarable as before, and the phaeton wheels were clattering down the rough street. Horror at his sinful jealousy and petty speech possessed the rector, and he turned to the poor thin face or the pillow in a passion of remorse.

The rector passed his own gate that night and went on to the chapel. He was suddenly profoundly disturbed as his own spiritual condition. When had he ever harbored such sinful thoughts toward another?

It was still and cool in the dim little chapel. The rector sank down in a pew and buried his face in his hands. Almost the burden was greater than he could bear, he thought, as he look-ed ahead on the dreary days of joyless could no longer regulate his own

She was in white, with roses in her belt, and to the Reverend Mr. Armory she was like an angelic presence in the gray chapel. Her cheeks were flushed and she was in some adorable hesitation.

ly, "I saw you come here—and I came tell you-I was horrid and stupid this afternoon-you must forgive me

She held out her hand. Before he knew the rector had taken it in both his own and stood looking down at her in a humult of thankfulness, and a fear that was sweet, like hope. "It was I." he said brokenly. "You must forgive me. You don't know what your coming there meant to me—you don't know how happy it made me. But then I—the thought that that sort of thing was my whole life to me, and just a sort of interlude to you, made me wretched and rebellious. Don't you see? The Tribune's Proverb contest is a feature of entertainment, summer recreation and education, something that will call for the advice or recollection of grandfather or grandmother, careful research and stick-to-ativeness, to apply the old. English proverbs to the several illustrations. The Tribune has just began to publish a series of pictures, each of which will represent an "Old English Proverb or Quotation." There will be sixty of these illustrations, one appearing each day until the series is finished. All you have to do is to find the quotation represented by each illustration. Write it upon the blank that is provided, and then mail or bring them to the Proverb Editor of The Hay City Trib-

Proverb Editor of The Hay City Trib-une: If you answer all or nearest of the sixty quotations correctly you will win first prize.

Among the prizes is a beautiful $500 Germain Plano, and a very de-sirable residence site. Besides these there are a Five-Year Scholarship in thee International Correspondence School worth $110, $60 Scholarship in Bay City Business College, Diamond Ring, elegant Steel Range, Gold Watches, Davenport, Set Dishes, Gas Range and many other valuable pres-cisis.

Which would you prefer? Order day. The contest to-day. The contest opened June 23rd, and if you missed the early pictures you can secure back copies at. The Tribune office or by mail at 2c for the daily and 5c for the Sunday.

Serious Punctures, like intentional knife cuts, can be vulcanized like any other tire.

Two Hundred Thousand pairs sold last year. Sevanly-live Thousand pairs now in actual use. User make—SOFT, ELASTIO and EASY RIDING.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to excape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied existence rating that their tires have only been pumped upone or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. That "Holding Back" sensation commonly felt when riding on asphalt or soft roads is overcome by the patent "Staket Weave" tread which prevents all sir from being squeezed out between the tire and the road thus overcoming all suction. The regular price of these circs is 5% to per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factor price to the rider of only $1.50 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.Q.D. as approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.45 per pair) If you send FILL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. We will allow a constitution of the part of the puncture closers to be used in case of intentional knife cajus or keavy gashed. Three to be returned at OUK expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination.

We are perfectly reliable and money step is one is also part as bank. Ask your Postmaster, Banker, Express or Freight Ageil of the Editor of this paper about us. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, were better, last longer and look finst which you want is remarkable tire ofer, your order. We want you to send us a small trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire ofer, your order.
